Acknowledgments

I am particularly indebted to a large number of retired and serving soldiers. These include Col. Bob Shaw, Col. Jim Mis, Col. Pat Mahaney, Lt. Col Scott Akerley, Lt. Col. Tom Beyerl, Maj. Vince Gothard, Command Sgt. Maj. Alfred G. Birch, Sgt. Maj. Eric Zipperer, Sgt. Maj. Jose Gordon, and especially Lt. Col. Mike Bowman of the Asymmetric Warfare Group. Mike began his service with the AWG as a Department of the Army civilian and is a living encyclopedia of the unit. I owe a special debt of gratitude to Gen. Dennis Reimer, Gen. Peter Schoomaker, Gen. George W. Casey, Jr., Gen. James D. Thurman, Gen. Richard Cody, Gen. Scott Wallace, Lt. Gen. Daniel P. Bolger, Lt. Gen. James J. Lovelace, Lt. Gen. Michael Oates, Maj. Gen. Christopher Hughes, Maj. Gen. James Schwitters, and Brig. Gen. Donald Schenk. Friends and colleagues Col. David Clonts, Col. Frank Hall, and Capt. Jeff Ryals provided me what I could not provide myself: the insights of officers who accepted the risks of serving at battalion/squadron or brigade level in Iraq at a time when the place was really dangerous. I cannot thank enough Lt. Col. Leah Reid of the U.S. Army General Management Office, Ms. Karen Lewis and retired Chief Warrant Officer and Department of the Army civilian Del Stewart of the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command Historian's Office, and Mr. Scott Gower at the National Defense University archives at Fort Lesley J. McNair.

I also wish to thank Dr. Greg Urwin, Dr. Jay Lockenour, and Dr. Alan McPherson for serving as my dissertation committee with a special debt to Greg who concurrently served as my Ph.D. advisor. All three made my time at Temple University rewarding. Rounding out my committee was Dr. Nick Schlosser of the Center of Military History. For Nick, this was an additional duty, and one I appreciate his taking on. Finally, I want to thank Vangie Campbell from Temple's history department. She was instrumental in helping me navigate the transition from soldier to student by solving the issues that might otherwise consumed so much time.
